"hating." We want the other fellow boiled in oil, to be hussled off to the Salt Mines of Siberia, to be forced into The Foreign Legion . . . to be forced to dig a basement and stay in it. We want every other driver off the highway, everyone else sent on a one-way trip to the Moon, and no one, but no one, left on a lonesome Earth but You or Me. What the heck has gotten into us? Foreign nations take our money and food, but cry "Yankee, Go Home." Maybe we might try being like my favorite baseball team. Lots of fans don't like 'em and cry "Yankee Go Home" . . . and they do just that . . . home being the home plate with another victory.

There was the commencement speaker who selected as his subject the letters in the name of his college, which happened to be Yale. He held forth for half an hour the "Y" which he said was for Youth. The second half hour was on the "A" which he said was for Ambition. The third half hour was the "L" and he said that Loyalty was a good thing. And the final half hour was the "E" for Enterprise. The pitch was that Youth, Ambition, Loyalty and Enterprise were ingredients of success in life. One person in the audience commented that he was so glad the speaker had not attended The Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN
Background Scripture: Exodus 2 through 4.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 103: 1-13.

Not Forgotten

Lesson for July 12, 1964

Where is your God? can be an earnest, even desperate question. Or it can be a sneer of mockery. It can be asked by friends of God or by his enemies. In times of peace and prosperity the question loses its anguish. Like one of Browning's characters, we can sing happily, 'God's in His heaven and all's right with the world." But there comes a time when it is small comfort to think that God is in heaven. That's exactly the trouble, we think. He is in heaven when he ought to be here. There is a sore question even when we ask, "Where is our God. Where is mine? When it's your own faith that is about to break, the question about God isn't just a theological problem, it is acute.

God Knows

"God heard . . . God remembered . . . God saw . . . and God knew." These words stand out in the two sentences that close the second chapter of Exodus. This is the first assurance the Bible has for us: we do not have a forgetful God, or an absent-minded one. The true God is not a penthouse god with a privately listed telephone. He bears, He knows, He sees, He remembers. He neither guesses nor forgets what goes on in His world.

God Prepares a Man

One reason why that question "Where is God?" can be so often asked, is that God never advertises what He is doing. If He did what maintenance crews do on the city street, put up a yellow barrier and a sign: Slow—God at Work- it would be different. But He has His own way of doing things. No doubt those toiling, sweating, bitter Hebrew slaves often thought themselves or asked one another, "Where is God? It seems to have forgotten us! But God did not report to them, and He will not report to us what He is doing. He is doing. Maybe if He told us we should only laugh — in the wrong place. What are we God doing to help His poor persecuted people down in Egypt? Well, when the time came, He was getting a man ready. (He was getting him in his grandparents, but that's another story.) Where is God? He is seeing to it that a little basket of reeds is not lost in the Nile River, that a baby cries just in time to catch a princess' heart. He is arranging for that child to have the best education in Egypt. He is seeing to it that required some years later, you might have been told (if God had cared to let you in on the secret) that God was preparing an old man, a sheep-herder, to become acquainted with every mile of a terrible wilderness country. One day he would lead a nation there now he led his sheep.

God Waits for the Time

If God knows what is going on, and if God is preparing today as in Moses' time some great man or men to lead us into new promised lands, then why does He not come to our rescue now? The idea that God waits for the right time to come before He takes action is a hard one to swallow; but it is all over the Bible. God does not do everything at once. When God made this universe He made Time with it, and God respects all things He has made. Even Jesus Christ did not come 'til the time was "fulfilled," as the Bible expresses it. Children have only two hands on their clocks: one points to "now" and the other to "never." But there is another clock, and God made it and He goes by it; it has a hand pointing to "not yet." Moses, you may remember, once tried to help the Israelites by killing Egyptians. He killed one himself for a start. But it was not God's time. Sometimes men come too late to their work: God never does. "Our times are in His hand."

Pastor Speaks

"... NO MURDER ..."

This sixth command, like the eight, has only four words, but in them are the truths about the sacredness of human life.

In these times when human life is cheap, when man is reduced to a tool of the spread of idealogies, we will do well to recall and reclaim the intregrity and value of the individual. God says in clarity and with levity that man is the "crown of creation" and is to be so treated. The priority of human life is stated in these words. "Thou shalt not kill."

There is such a thing as voluntary and involuntary murder. Sometimes the line is thin between the two. So we need to understand God's price upon a human being so that we may take this command more seriously. There are at least five kinds of killing in the Bible: accidental, killing with revenge, capital punishment, premeditated murder, and killing through carelessness and negligence. Each are dealt with in the Bible. Time does not permit me to deal with each of these separately. Each must choose for himself and so conduct his life in keeping with this command. Values are involved, and these come from the Lord. One obvious way we violate this law is by direct killing of our fellowman. None one person can ever understand the life of another person, therefore he is not liberty to "take his life". Another way we break this command is through war. Especially WHEN one's purpose is to extend his own power or empire. Even the "Spanish Inquisition" was a violation of this command though fought in the name of religion. The massacres of Stalin, Hitler, Castro and others break this law, and will not go unpunished.

Then we are in danger of violation of this command when we have ill or bad attitudes towards our fellowman. Jesus said "we have already committed murder in our hearts." "He that hateth his brother is a murder."

And when we fail to help, when the opportunity comes, to preserve human life, we may be guilty. By no stretch of my own imagination can I understand why we burn grain and destroy food with bulldozers when a third of our population is near starvation.

Finally, any activity of malice or hatred which leads to the destruction of human life is a violation of this command.

What is the answer? The antidote to murder, which is actively going on all over the world? The answer is the same as in the case of any other sin problem. Christ is the answer. He places within the human heart of every person he saves the attitude of the sacredness of human life, and the love which can help one not to break this command.

We are enjoying our vacation in Abeline Texas and will be giving the four concluding articles in this series from our new pastorate at the First Baptist Church, Hastings, Fla.

Be faithful to your church, and practice love of the Lord and your fellowman. These will help you to keep this commandment.
